Summary

All users were able to complete the usability tasks successfully. Users were able to find all the information and features from the tasks, confirming the website design is accessible and easy to navigate. Feedback indicates the data is well-organized and located in intuitive sections and pages. Additional feedback highlights the website's professional appearance and overall ease of use. None of the users provided suggestions for improvements or indicated any issues with the website design.

Actionable feedback points

- Person B did not see the contact email address on the contact page but on the Home Page (the email address is on the footer of every page). However, the Contact page includes the email address in the introductory paragraph. This indicates the email address on the Contact page is not visible enough.
- Person C found some information about holidays on the FAQ section of the Contact page, but he did not find the complete information about the actual holidays on the About page. This indicates there is a navigation issue between the general information on the FAQ section of the Contact page and the complete information on the About page.

Plans for improvements

- Email address on the Contact page: Add a dedicated section on the Contact page for the email address and phone number so users can see it right away when they go to the page.
- Holiday information on the Contact Page: On the holiday information included in the FAQ section of the Contact page, add a link to the Holiday Closures section on the About page and recommend the user to follow the link to get more information about holidays.
